

Scott Sergent, A.K.A. Coach Scooter, has been writing about sports for over 20 years. Sergent got his start in his parents living room sitting in front of the TV with a stack of legal pads and a box of Crayolas recording all the stats of every game he could find.

In addition to SEC Sports Fan.com, he has written for the Atlanta Braves, The Sunday Paper, The Southern Ledger and www.utvols.com.

Growing up in Knoxville, Sergent is a die-hard Tennessee fan. The way things have been going for the Vols, he has died hard a lot the last few years. He is also a fan of the rest of the SEC and embraces the traditions and passion the fans of the other schools have. "That's what makes it all worthwhile," he once said before a Tennessee game. "Seeing the way people love their school as much as I love mine. That's when you begin to appreciate what it means to be a fan in the SEC."

His day job finds him at the Georgia Tech Cable Network in Atlanta. He produces videos and oversees the programming for the campus TV station.

He is the Executive Producer of On The Flats, a behind the scenes look at the Georgia Tech football team. On The Flats has been nationally recognized with eight Telly Awards and one Aurora Award for programming excellence.

Coach Scooter married his wife because she loves college football just as much as he does and even yells at the TV during games. However, she forbids their two children to go anywhere near their TV with a legal pad and crayons.
